Negotiations: Embrace Your Value!

Tuesday, March 3, 2020

5-6:30 p.m.

College of Medicine - Tucson, RM 3117

Let's face it...life is all about negotiation and the truth is, the playing field is not level. Gender stereotypes play a role, but women are often our own worst enemy. We approach negotiations differently, we think differently and we are programmed to behave and communicate differently. These differences affect our ability to communicate our value, embrace our power and advocate for ourselves. Studies have also shown that women simply don't ask. This presentation will challenge the way you think about negotiations and reprogram your way of thinking so you can confidently jump into the game.
